

Amy Reichlin, MBA

Amy serves as an executive, team, and organizational coach and consultant. Amy is passionate about helping companies grow their most important asset - their people.

Amy's purpose, her passion and her process invite leaders and teams into the crucial conversations, in order to move beyond barriers and into the flow of individual and collective potential. Effective leaders and teams take time to learn themselves and each other, to name their gifts and their liabilities and to embrace honesty over appearances and perfection. From these places of awareness, authenticity, respect, and utilizing their multiple intelligences, leaders, and teams can reduce unnecessary "noise" and focus on doing their best, most impactful work.

At the heart of everything, Amy shares her optimistic mindset, creativity, and steadfast desire for people to be happy both professionally and personally. Her gift is to listen and sense quickly what is needed for people and places to move out of "stuck" and into the sweet spot, with the best ideas, collaboration, and results.

Past and Current Clients Include:

Twitter, Hewlett Packard, Ordermark, Envistacom, Uplight, Propagate Ventures, Alpine Talent Partners, ModusLink, Conga, Apto, Market Real Estate, Micron, Boulder Area Bar Association

Education and Affiliations:

All Star Mentor, Techstars Startup Accelerator; Naropa University, Masters in Psychology (2003), Kellogg School of Management, MBA (1995), Connecticut College, BA in Studio Art and English (1990). She is trained in a variety of leadership tools and assessments including Leadership Circle Profile 360 Assessment Tool and Mindfulness and Emotional Intelligence. Certified Coach.